Frequently Asked Questions

What is WHOIS?

Whenever a domain is registered, the International Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN) requires that these individuals, businesses or organizations provide up-to-date personal contact information to their domain registrars. This information, which may include the name, address, email, phone number and associated IP addresses, is collected and displayed in the ICANN WHOIS Database, which acts similarly to an international address book for the public.

How can I protect my privacy?

Our team is committed to your safety and protection. Although ICANN requires us to provide private information for their public WHOIS database, our Domain Privacy + Protection service masks your private contact details by displaying our information instead of yours.

How can I use the WHOIS lookup tool?

Viewing the WHOIS information for any domain name is as simple as typing the domain name in question into the search bar above. Our tool will allow you to search the WHOIS for most top level domains in order to learn the registrant information as well as the nameservers and associated IP addresses.

How do I update my WHOIS information?

Your WHOIS information is managed within your Domain Dashboard. For complete instructions on updating your WHOIS info, please see this helpful Knowledge Base article.

Can I look up .org, .info, .biz, .us, or .tel domains?

Due to a variety of reasons, our WHOIS tool cannot query certain top level domains.
For .ORG domain name WHOIS information, please visit: https://thenew.org/get/find-my-org/whois/
